

Blame it on Mercury

By afterworkstitch.com

Hello, fellow crafter!

Thank you so much for your interest my designs. I believe that the crafting is living from sharing ideas and project. By sharing my designs, I want to give back to this amazing community.

This project does not need any special supplies, you probably already have everything at home. You can find the Thread colors on the Color Map on Page 2. Please keep in mind, that I am using Anchor Thread. If you prefer any other brand, you will need to look up what the correlating color in their scheme is.

The stitches are described in the stitch map on Page 2. If you need help, I would recommend to look them up on YouTube. A lot of very talented people made amazing videos about the basic embroidery stitches.

On Page 3, you will find the 1:1 pattern for you to print at home or directly transfer to the fabric.

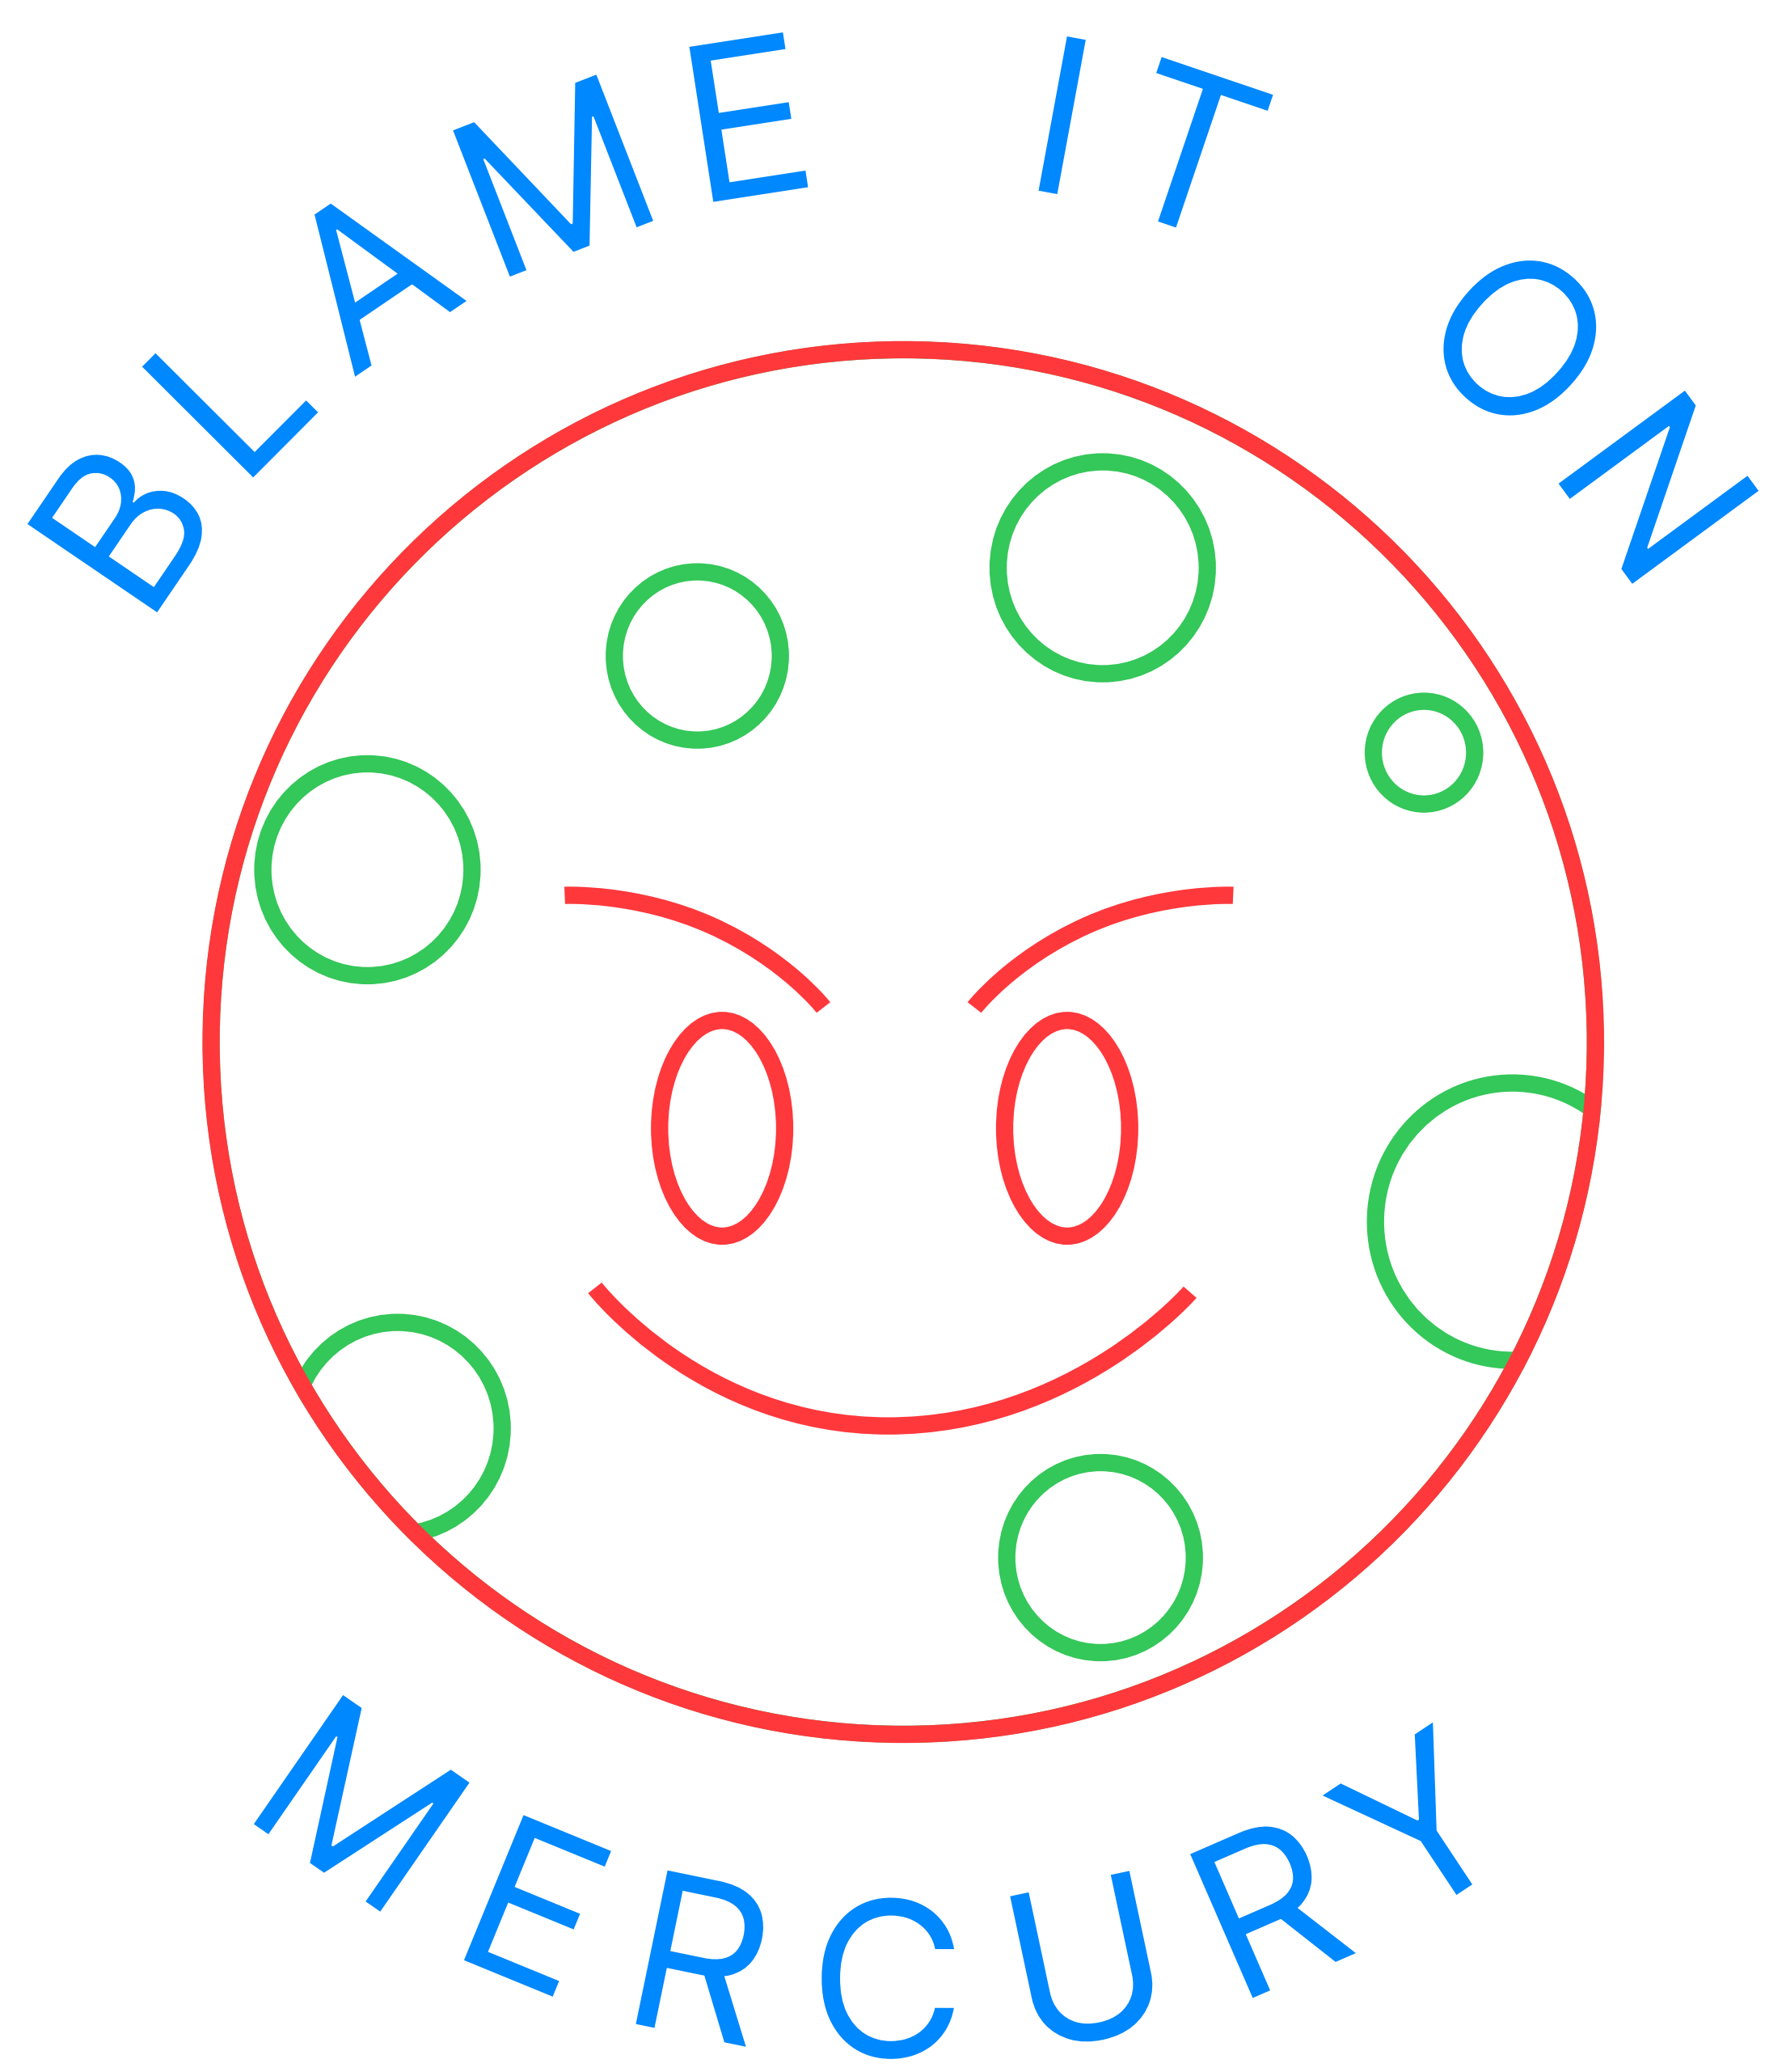

Enjoy this project!

I am always happy to hear from people who used my designs. Please feel free to share your creation on social media. Don't forget to tag me on Threads @insideMikesWorld
